Caesar's Head, S. C., three miles from the North Carolina state line, is the highest point in South Carolina. From its proud crest can be seen innumerable peaks of the Blue Ridge and the cotton fields of the Sunny South. The great Geer Highway from Greenville, S. C., climbs around this wonder of nature to the noted Caesar's Head Hotel, on its way by Conestee Falls to its terminus, the Soldiers' Monument, four miles from Brevard, N. C.; marking the Eastern Entrance to the great Pisgah National Forest and Game Preserve.
